

FEPTO meeting 2009 Meeting & Trusting your neighbours “A near neighbour is better than a distant cousin”

In Dutch:

“Een goede buur is beter dan een verre vriend”

(A good neighbour is better than a far-away friend)

For our next meeting we made a program on becoming neighbourly. This means networking, meeting, trusting, getting to know each other, getting closer. Professionally as well as personally.

This time we have no PD-VIP's, experts or guest-speakers. The participants will be the experts who share their experience in teaching psychodrama with their neighbours.

Within the context of three rules and the help of a few facilitators we will exchange / share our favourite topics of our institutes or of ourselves.

This time the focus of the meeting will be on meeting.

See and be seen

We did a small research amongst psychotherapists we asked the questions: what are the real topics behind the problems of people, what is their search, why do clients come to you? Every psychotherapist gave a different answer. But all together the basics were: It's all about “to see and be seen”.

So come to FEPTO with your questions, your stories, your experiences, your issues. What are the psychodrama-topics you love to work with, what is your speciality, what did you discover in your work, what are you curious about, what do you want to talk about?

Tell and share, listen to others and become neighbours.

To meet even more meaningfully: related to your favourite topics there are always personal drives. As we progress with our themes -and trust-we encourage you to share these too.

By sharing our professional and personal experiences we build and consolidate our own European Psychodrama Neighbourhood.

We have taken note of your comments in the last evaluation forms, many of you mentioned topics you wished to explore.

You will get it all!

Question to the participants

A near neighbour is.....

In your language...?
